Exhibition of Specimens

William H. Harnden of Tewksbury has loaned the Department of Archaeology of Phillips Academy a large collection of specimens found about Andover, Tewksbury and Ballardvale. These are on exhibition in the first case to the left, south side of the hall.

The Indians of this part of New England were exceedingly primitive and the specimens in the collection are much ruder than those from the West and the South. The workmanship on the implements indicates that the natives made use of poor material, that they were unable to do fine work in stone. Many of the specimens have the appearance of great age. There are a few collections from this vicinity and therefore the exhibit is of special local value.

FIVE MONTHS' DEADLOCK ENDS

Congressman Lorimer Elected Senator From Illinois

DEMOCRATS LINE UP FOR HIM

His Political Sagacity Shown by Fact That He Had Not Received a Vote Up to a Few Days Ago, While Hopkins Was Almost Within Winning Distance—A Self-Made Man of British Birth

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—Congressman William Lorimer of Chicago is the junior United States senator from Illinois. He was elected on the 95th ballot in the joint assembly, by a coalition of 53 Democrats and 55 Republican votes, to fill the vacancy from Illinois, which has existed in the senate since the term of Albert J. Hopkins, Republican primary candidate for re-election, expired on March 4. The deadlock has existed since last January.

REPRESENTATIVE LORIMER.

Most of the leaders express satisfaction with the outcome. The outward quietness with which the election was brought about testifies to the consummate political prowess of Lorimer. Until a few days ago he had not received a vote for senator, while Hopkins, who went before the legislature with the indorsement of the primary election of the Republicans of Illinois, had kept within 20 or 30 votes of a majority during the five months of the deadlock. A few days ago Lorimer received one vote and rumor began to travel that he was to be elected by a carefully arranged bi-partisan coalition.

After his election Lorimer thanked the Democrats for their support and announced that he had always been and always would be a Republican.

Although William Lorimer's progress in politics has been steady and consistent from the time when he began securing city contracts for his firm of contractors until he was elected to the United States senate he can never be president, for he was born in England.

Mr. Lorimer's biography in the congressional directory is one of the briefest, about fifty words, and omits to mention that he first saw the light in 1861. At the age of 5 he was brought to this country by his parents. At the age of 12 he worked as a sign painter's apprentice. Later he labored at the stockyards, of which, in after years, he was to be known as the "boss." Next he gathered nickels on a street car.

Meanwhile he had become a political factor. He became a contractor, was called the "blonde boss" in the newspapers and was counted on to deliver the packing house district to the Republican ticket. In 1882 he was defeated for a county office, but three years later he was elected to the Fifty-fourth congress, where he has remained, with the exception of one term, ever since.

DERBY GOES TO MINORU

Accident to American Favorite in Famous Turf Classic

Epsom, May 27.—King Edward's brown colt Minoru justified his name, which is Japanese for "success," by winning the Derby, which will be remembered always in the annals of Epsom as one of the finest ever run on that historic track. W. Raphael's Louviers, with France's crack jockey, Stern, on his back, came under the wire so close an attendant upon Minoru that the spectators were undecided which led until the king's number was displayed on the blackboard. Lord Michelham's William the Fourth was a good third, and half a dozen of the fifteen starters were well bunched behind.

The American bred colt Sir Martin, which everyone had reckoned upon as Minoru's foremost rival, was crowded out of his stride about the middle of the course. Jockey Martin shot over his mount's head to the ground as Sir Martin stumbled, and with him fell the hopes of hundreds of confident American onlookers and many thousand American dollars were lost. It is estimated that $300,000 was put up on the Kentucky bred colt.

TRAINS REMAIN AT STANDSTILL

Georgia Railroad Firemen Have Things All Their Own Way

TROUBLESOME RACE QUESTION

It is Brought Continually Into Unwholesome Prominence—Demoralization of Business is Threatened—No One Interfering With Running of Trains and Government is Powerless to Compel Transportation of Mail

Atlanta, May 27.—The tension in the Georgia railway firemen's strike is increasing with every hour's delay in settling the race question involved. This is the attitude in which negotiations for terminating the strike are being conducted here.

United States mails held up since the beginning of the week, a dozen counties facing demoralization of business, and the race issue brought continually into unwholesome prominence, were the factors which spurred the negotiations through hours of discussion Wednesday.

Governor Smith and General Manager Scott of the Georgia railroad had a long conference, at which they discussed the feasibility of submitting the problem to a local made up of men conversant with local conditions along the railroads. United States Commissioner of Labor Neill had his first conference with Governor Smith.

Various towns in the strike district have taken inventory of their visible supply of food. Madison reports fifteen days of plenty in prospect. Washington reports a shortage in yeast, and prices of bakingstuffs rising as a result. At Lithonia the condemnation of eleven cars of side-tracked provisions is proposed. Other towns are obtaining food by means of automobiles or mule teams.

An offer of aid in moving the mails was sent to Washington by Vice President Ball of the Firemen's union, who is conducting the strike, and who wired the postmaster general that he would be glad to confer with any representative of the postoffice department designated by him and to aid in getting the mails through. A hand car carried suburban mail out of Atlanta.

Government is Powerless

Washington, May 27.—In the present situation of the Georgia railroad strike the United States government is powerless to take any official action. The government has a contract with the railroad to carry mails, and if the railroad was in a position to do so, but was prevented by violence or interference with the United States mails would lie.

United States marshals would be assigned to see that the injunction was obeyed, and if they were not sufficiently powerful regular troops would be sent to see that there was no interference with the running of trains.

But as the government understands the case, it is not that anyone is interfering with running of trains or carrying mails, but the railroads cannot get men to haul the trains. No man can be forced to work. If the engineers and firemen on the Georgia railroad wish to quit work neither state nor government has power to say that they shall continue. As long as the men do not interfere with others who wish to take their places, they are law-abiding citizens.

SIX ARRESTS MADE

Secret Service Men Descend Upon a Counterfeiting Plant

New York, May 27.—Captain Flynn of the secret service and six secret service men raided an alleged counterfeiting plant on a lonely farm four miles from Wilton, Conn. Three men were arrested and a complete plant for making silver coins was confiscated. In addition presses for making paper money were seized; with a quantity of the Indian head $5 silver certificates.

Upon information procured there three additional arrests were made in New York. The Connecticut prisoners are all Italians and are being held in the farmhouse.

MAINE SAILOR'S YARN

Told Ship's Captain That He Assisted in the Guinness Crimes

Christiana, May 27.—James Small of Maine, a seaman on the Russian bark Lochee, who was arrested at Fredrikstad on the arrival there of the Lochee because of an alleged confession to Captain Stillman that he had participated with Mrs. Belle Guinness in the murders that were committed on the Guinness farm near Laporte, Ind., last year, had an examination before a judge in a court here.

Small asserted that the story he told the captain was untrue. He said he invented it with the purpose of being discharged from duty on the bark. He said that when the murders were committed he was a soldier in Portland, Me.

The judge who heard the statement of Small believes that he is insane. Small will not be prosecuted, but will be sent to the United States.

CHAUFFEURS ARRESTED

Said to Have Swindled Employers by Tampering With Registers

Boston, May 27.—Police inspectors in plain clothes have been liberally patronizing taxicabs in Boston the past two weeks and as a result have unearthed, it is claimed, a scheme to defraud by means of which the Taxi Service company has lost nearly $20,000 since the cabs were first operated in this city.

Four men were arrested last night as a result of the investigation and charges of larceny preferred against them. All are taxicab drivers.

The company claims the chauffeurs have tampered with the registers on the taxicabs, making it appear that the machines have traveled a less distance than actually covered and pocketing the differences in fares.

JEROME'S UNIQUE APPEAL TO VOTERS

Does Not Appear to Take Well With Large Audience

New York, May 27.—William T. Jerome, district attorney of New York, took his seat at Cooper Union last night after an evening unique in the political annals of the city, during which he attempted to explain the administration of his office, pursuant to his agreement to "give an account of his stewardship."

Hundreds of questions were literally hurled at him, and after a turbulent meeting the 2000 or more persons who packed Cooper Union declined to register a vote of confidence. An attempt to bring about such a vote was made, but it was hissed down by Jerome's opponents.

What effect this will have on Jerome's political ambitions is problematical.

DID NOT RECORD NOISE

People Opposed to Sunday Baseball Had Relied Upon Phonograph

New York, May 25.—A phonograph helped the Jersey City club of the Eastern league to win a victory for Sunday baseball in the chancery court here.

A resident near the ball grounds sought to have Sunday games prohibited as a nuisance, but a phonograph operator testified that he tried at the plaintiff's house to make a record of the noise alleged to have accompanied the games and that the machine failed to record any noise whatever.

Vice Chancellor Stevenson held that Sunday ball playing was illegal, but that its suppression lay with the police rather than with the chancery court.

BOOST IN MEAT PRICES

From Ten to Fifteen Percent Higher in New York City

New York, May 27.—Adjusting themselves to conditions as reported from Chicago, retail prices of meats in New York jumped from 10 to 15 percent Wednesday.

Market conditions caused the rise in beef, mutton and pork, and poultry followed in sympathy. Further advances are expected, when wholesale prices, it is predicted, will also go up to meet light cattle receipts in Chicago.

J. T. MAHONEY, Register.

Unanswerable.

"Vicious circle" is a term often used in the medical world. An example of its psychological use applied to argument may be found in Joseph A. Scoville's book, "Old Merchants of New York City."

Tom, the son of a wealthy man, was a great favorite with all who knew him, but he heartily detested business.

A merchant of New York had hired him as a bookkeeper at a high salary. Nevertheless Tom got into the habit of reaching the office later and later, until finally he got there about 2 in the afternoon. When this state of affairs had gone on for a week, the merchant remonstrated.

"But, my dear sir," returned Tom, "how can I come any earlier? I don't get my breakfast until 1."

"But get your breakfast earlier."

"How can I? I don't get up till 12."

"Then get up earlier."

"How can I," pleaded Tom, "when I don't go to bed until daylight?"

In the face of such convincing argument there was nothing to be said.

The Drill in the Pearl.

The pale, bent workmen were, most of them, drilling costly pearls, but here a man in kid gloves performed the operation of skinning—the operation of removing a pearl's outer, discolored coat, so as to give it again its original luster. And by the window another man shook industriously three pearls in a bottle.

"It is a secret of the trade—the pearl driller's trade," he said—"this bottle shaking. You see, in pearl drilling a drill point often breaks off in a pearl, and to get it out may take a whole day's work—that is, if you don't know the secret."

He looked closely at the bottom of the glass bottle, and then, continuing his shaking, he resumed: "But if you put your pearl in a bottle and shake it up the drill point in a few minutes will fall out of itself. Look! There's another out already. The third will come soon now."—Exchange.

Lunar Rainbows.

Lunar rainbows are seldom observed in the temperate zone. Very likely the physical phenomenon occurs frequently, but is invisible because of the faintness of the moon's light. In the tropics, where moonlight is more intense, says the Scientific American, lunar rainbows are more frequently observed. They are by no means rare at Reunion Island. At all places the phenomenon is most frequently seen at full moon when the moon's light is highest, but it has been seen in various phases of the moon. It was first observed by Aristotle. A lunar rainbow is produced at full moon by the spray of the great Victoria falls of the Yguazu in Brazil.

Why They Moved.

The Blinges, mother and daughter, had long outstayed their welcome at their country friend's house. Moreover, they evinced no sign of going away nor did the mother seem to be in any way affected by the strong hints to go which the overtaxed hostess threw out from time to time. Finally, forbearance exhausted, the entertainer decided to reach the mother through her daughter. So one day, calling the little visitor to her, she said, "Maimie, when do you expect to go home?"

"Oh, I'm sure I don't know," was the careless reply. "We've several other places to stop at yet."

"Well, when do you go on to the next place?"

"Can't even tell that. Mamma says it's immaterial to her just when she'll leave here."

"But, my dear child," exclaimed the exasperated hostess, "doesn't your mother realize how costly living is these days?"

"Oh, yes, she knows how dear it is. That's why we left the city."

"Well, Maimie, I cannot afford to entertain visitors any longer, and I wish you'd tell your mother that at once!"

"Is that an insult?" rejoined the child, turning haughtily to the speaker.

"Why do you ask that, child?"

"Because when we're insulted we go on to the next place!"—London Week-ly.

OUR HIGH IDEALS.

Is the Grange Measuring Up to the Standards Set by its Founders? [Special Correspondence.]

The question has been asked, "Is the grange measuring up to the high ideals of its founders?" Ideals are perfection. Results are reality. Ideals are spiritual. Results are human and because they are human are seldom perfect. Ideals mean higher and better things. "He aims too low who shoots beneath the stars."

The founders of the grange placed its ideals high, and that it has "measured up," "made good," that the realization of its ideals in results is apparent in the higher and better things for rural life, is proved by the oft repeated remark, "They bulged better than they knew."

One of its ideals was to perfect for the first time in history an organization of tillers of the soil "united by the strong and faithful ties of agriculture," nation wide and perhaps as extensive as the world. This ideal has been largely realized, and well nigh a million members are now within its fold, while other farm organizations are following the lead of the grange and keeping step with millions more.

Other ideals were "meeting together, selling together, working together, buying together, talking together and in general acting together for mutual protection and advancement, to bring producers and consumers, farmers and manufacturers into the most direct and friendly relations possible, to develop a better and higher manhood and womanhood among ourselves, to enhance the comforts and attractions of our homes and strengthen our attachments to our pursuits, to encourage education, that practical agriculture, domestic science and all the arts which adorn the home be taught in our schools, encourage honesty in business and politics, to support temperance and promote peace on earth, good will toward men," and stand for a proper equality, equity and fairness, protection for the weak, restraint upon the strong—in short, justly distributed burdens and justly distributed power."

All worthy ideals these for the sons and daughters of our American republic. One of its highest ideals was to place woman in her proper place—the full equal with man—the first organization in the world to do so, and thereby to inculcate a proper appreciation of her abilities and her sphere.

Through the working out of its ideals it has made tens of thousands of men and women better—better to each other, better to their neighbors and better to their God. It has made brighter and better homes, bringing about the real uplift in rural life. It is securing better and more just laws, purer politics, curbing monopolies, electing better men to office, and if its ideals are kept bright and remain high and if its members work for these ideals and not for personal ambition or other selfish purposes millions more will rise up and call it blessed.

GRANGE BANKS.

Pennsylvania Has Twenty of Them, With Resources of About $3,000,000.

Through the grange organizations in the state of Pennsylvania there has been worked out a practical demonstration of the fact that farmers are able to have and successfully operate their own financial institutions. In the short space of about three years, says Past Master Hill, some twenty banks and one trust company have been organized. The capital stock of these institutions is considerably over $1,000,000, and their resources at this time approximate $3,000,000.

There are about 3,000 shareholders in these various institutions, and while the institutions all receive the usual examination by the state and federal authorities they are also audited and thoroughly examined at frequent intervals by private auditors specially employed for this purpose by the institutions themselves. They are so organized that not one of them is in any way responsible for the operation of another, nor is there any liability attached to the state grange as an organization. This movement has, however, done much to popularize the grange and indicates the progressive character of the membership in the state.

A Woman State Inspector.

Miss Dora Ellis, who holds the office of pomona in the Ohio state grange, is one of the women visitors or inspectors of workshops and factories. She spent most of the winter in Columbus. She was called to Cincinnati for six weeks' work and then sent to Columbus for the third week in April. She next visited Marion and Delaware in her official capacity.

Fire and Tornado Insurance.

The Kansas Patrons' Fire and Tornado association has decreased the cost of insurance to grange farmers of that state by fully one-half. It is now carrying $8,280,000 in risks on something over 4,000 policies. The cost on each $1,000 for 1908 was $2.17. The president and treasurer each draw the munificent salary of $50 each.

The business agent of the Ohio state grange reports combined purchases by the members in that state last year of $10,000 worth of binder twine.

Supreme Court Decides Against
Cardenio F. King

WILL REMAIN IN STATE PRISON

Man Who Astonished Country by His Meteoric Career in World of Finance Will Continue to Engage in Occupation of Operating Knitting Machine—Bad News Conveyed to Him by His Wife

Boston, May 26.—Cardenio F. King, the one-time financier, promoter, stock broker and publisher, must serve his full sentence of from ten to fourteen years at hard labor in state prison.

CARDENIO F. KING.

By a decision of the full bench of the supreme court, handed down yesterday, all the exceptions taken by his counsel at the time of King's trial are overruled and the former newspaper reporter, whose meteoric career in the world of finance astonished the country, now stands convicted of larceny from those who answered his glowing advertisements, without possible hope of legal recourse except for an executive pardon.

Mrs. King went to the prison to break the news to her husband. The interview in the presence of a prison official was an affecting one, but King took the tidings very stoically. Mrs. King lost her composure entirely before taking her leave for another month, when the prison rules allow her another visit of one hour.

Since his incarceration began last winter King has enjoyed very good health and the prison officials say that he is today in even better condition than when he entered the institution. Each morning immediately after breakfast he marches with a squad to the knitting mill and spends the day in operating a hosiery machine.

CUT OF $36,000,000

President's Recommendation in Regard to Army Estimates

Washington, May 26.—President Taft has sent back to the war department the estimates submitted to him for the support of the military establishment during the fiscal year 1911, and indicated his desire that they should be cut approximately $36,000,000.

Army officers say the reduction in estimates, if persisted in by the president, means practically no construction work for the army during 1911.

NOT WANTED IN SALONIKI

Abdul Hamid May Be Removed to Island in the Mediterranean

Constantinople, May 27.—The military authorities are considering the removal of the place of residence of the former sultan, Abdul Hamid, from Saloniki to one of the islands of the archipelago in the Mediterranean. The population of Saloniki fears that trouble will arise because of Abdul Hamid's presence in their city. General Scheffke, inspector general, has gone to Saloniki in connection with the matter.

Porto Ricans Want Citizenship

Washington, May 26.—A committee of Porto Ricans have come to Washington, representing the Republican party of Porto Rico, to urge that the United States government grant citizenship to the islanders.

Postmaster For Fifty-Nine Years

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 24.—Milo F. Winchester, the oldest postmaster in the United States, having served continuously at Amenia for the past fifty-nine years, died of pneumonia. He was 86 years old.

Six Thousand Miners Out

Charleston, W. Va., May 26.—More than 6000 miners went out on strike in the Kenawha coal field because the operators demand the long ton. There was no violence and none is expected.

Thousand Cases of Typhoid

Kharkov, Russia, May 27.—A severe epidemic of typhus has broken out here. One thousand cases have been registered and all the educational institutions are closed.

BIG PLATE REJECTED

Splendid Piece of Steel in Battleship Found to Be Defective

Washington, May 27.—One of the big plates of the new battleship North Dakota, now building at the Fore River Shipbuilding company's yards at Quincy, Mass., has been rejected. The plate had been put in place on the ship when it was found that it had spalled, or blistered, and Secretary Meyer appointed a special board to test the plate.

It found the plate a splendid piece of steel, which turned the points of the drills used upon it, but the spalling was sufficient to cause the board to recommend its rejection. The plate will remain in place until a new one is made.

NEAR A SETTLEMENT

Agreement to Dispose of Emery Claim by Arbitration

Washington, May 26.—A protocol for submission to arbitration of the Emery claim was signed last night with representatives of the Nicaraguan government at the home of Secretary of State Knox.

The claim, which has been long pending, arose out of the annulment by Nicaragua of a concession granted for cutting mahogany because of an alleged violation of its provisions. About two weeks ago Pedro Gonzalez arrived in Washington as a special messenger from President Zelaya of Nicaragua to settle the claim either by compromise or arbitration.

WANT SLEEP RATHER THAN RECREATION

Daylight Movement Rejected by Government Clerks

Washington, May 26.—The daylight hours movement has failed miserably in Washington. The government clerks have decided that they prefer the present 9 to 4:30 arrangements, and have voted down the proposed reform by two to one.

The cabinet officers, in whose departments the clerks were allowed to pass judgment on the daylight working scheme, profess to be greatly surprised at the result. The chief reason given for rejecting the proposal was simply that the clerks preferred sleep to recreation. They decided that the hour in bed in the morning was worth two or three on the ball field or golf course in the afternoon.

There was another reason which influenced the clerks. It was a dread suspicion that congress might perpetuate the early working part of the scheme.

TO CHAT WITH MARTIANS

Professor Todd Has Completed His Preliminary Arrangements

Amherst, Mass., May 27.—Arrangements have been practically completed by which Professor David P. Todd of Amherst college will make a balloon ascension on July 1 for a preliminary study of the conditions under which he will have to work in September, when he expects to ascend six or seven miles, or possibly higher, for a closer study of Mars and to intercept any possible messages the Martians may be sending earthward.

There will be no artificial means employed to sustain life in the preliminary trip, as the elevation sought will not be greater than three miles.

An Extra Day Off

Washington, May 26.—Two national holidays, Decoration day and the Fourth of July, falling on Sunday this year, President Taft issued an executive order granting leave to all government employees on the Monday following.

NEW ENGLAND BRIEFS

Frank W. Cheney, secretary and treasurer of Cheney Bros., silk manufacturers, died suddenly at his home at South Manchester, Conn., from heart disease. He was born in Providence in 1832.

Joseph Ouimet, 33 years old, committed suicide at his home at Marlboro, Mass. He was a restaurant keeper, and did a supposedly good business.

Edward F. Mann, aged 25, a street car conductor, fell from the running board of his car at Natick, Mass., and was instantly killed.

Clyde Deimars, 13, a student at Bridge academy, Dresden, Me., fell into Eastern river and was drowned.

The resignation of Frederick W. Putnam, professor of American archaeology and ethnology at Harvard, is announced, Putnam having reached the age of retirement.

Goodine Grant, 87 years old, a farmer of Prospect, Me., committed suicide by hanging. Family trouble is believed to have been the motive.

W. F. V. Cook, formerly treasurer of the Milford Co-operative Savings bank, was released from the Massachusetts state prison, having completed the minimum sentence of six years for the embezzlement of about $20,000 from the Milford bank.

Rev. Henry A. Cooke, D. D., a Baptist, died at Cambridge, Mass., aged 83. Since his retirement from the ministry he had devoted himself to literary work.

Because he could find no work, Henry N. Simpson of Boston, aged 68, committed suicide at his home.

THE TOWN BY A COUNTRYMAN AT HOME

Memorial Day

There isn't much to write about, save the old story, but the old story should be more interesting and of more vital concern, as each year it grows shorter. Memorial Day must become more and more a day of recognition on the part of all the people. We aren't going to have the old veterans here much longer. It is their day. It will be a pretty useless sort of a day if the influence of their interest in it and what it signifies for them and through them, shall pass away when they are gone.

One of the towns down on the Cape has most wisely broadened the significance of Memorial Day by placing the care of the program and the carrying out of the meeting in the hands of the citizens of the town. There is no disrespect to the Grand Army in this suggestion, rather there is a larger respect for the Grand Army in the wider interest that is aroused by enlisting the general public. There is much to commend this idea, and while many different organizations have been suggested as the ones who might properly inherit the responsibility of Memorial Day, isn't that heritage after all, of such importance and so precious, as to be best passed on to the great and complete American people?

Editorial Cinders

The care that is required and the expedition with which results are secured in connection with the preservation of the purity of the Andover Water Supply, has been well illustrated this week in one of the jobs that fell to the lot of the Board of Public Works. A few days ago it was noted that an unpleasant odor had taken possession of the water that came from the faucets in certain sections of the town. The knowledge of conditions gained in the long experience of Supt. Smith, led him to diagnose at once the difficulty. Three days after this knowledge, the Reservoir had been drawn off, a force of workmen had thoroughly scoured the entire surface of it with clean water and brooms, the vegetable growth that had accumulated, (hardly more than a small basketful, but tremendous in its effect on a great body of water,) had been removed, pumps began again to throw the streams into the Reservoir, and another tribute had been paid, unconsciously on the part of most of Andover citizens, to the efficiency of our water supply and its management.

The retirement of Chief of Police Pomeroy calls attention to a condition that is going to become more serious year by year in connection with the efficient service in towns like Andover. Chief Pomeroy leaves not alone for more congenial work, but because of the larger opportunity and the increased pay to come from labor at his chosen trade. Under these conditions the town loses a faithful servant, and is likely to lose more of them. Mr. Pomeroy has made a good Chief of Police. He lacked experience when he took the office, but he has quietly and unassumingly grown in the estimation of the people of the town.

The glamour of holding public office doesn't long suffice where there is the struggle for existence, or for the larger work of caring for a family, and it is not unlikely that positions in the town where the entire time of the one who holds them is to be taken up, will call for more generous payment within a short time than that which is now provided.

We haven't had much occasion in the past fourteen months to say very many good things about the work of the Highway Department, and it is therefore quite a relief to find an opportunity to say a word in approval of any work that this department does. But we do this most unqualifiedly of the cross-walk in front of the Railroad Station that has waited long and patiently for building. A great many people are to be accommodated by this improvement and as one of the forces that has been most active in wishing for this, in the interest of the general public, the Townsman is glad to thank Supt. Gould for not only building the walk, but having it built by an efficient constructor who knows how to lay concrete.

The death of Edward Butterworth of North Andover brings to mind a long and faithful service that he rendered in the School Department of Andover. As a teacher of music he would probably never rank among the great musicians and conductors, but he would have a high rank as a teacher of children and as an enthusiast of children's interest in singing. He did good work for the schools and he was therefore a benefactor in this community, as he was in his own home town.

A debate between Andover and Exeter upon the live question of "the direct primary" ought to, and probably will, attract a fairly good sized audience on Saturday evening of this week. A debate on the ball field at Exeter a week from tomorrow will, however, unless all signs fail, attract a many times larger audience. The Andover man who is in favor of the direct primary will find himself divided in his allegiance in these two coming contests for Exeter has the affirmative side in tomorrow's debate.

THE STATE BY A COUNTRYMAN ABROAD

The Making of a City Charter

Every citizen in the Commonwealth has an interest in the kind of government enjoyed by the different communities in the Commonwealth. The larger the community, the larger should be the personal interest, and following out this suggestion, the making of a charter for the city of Boston is a problem that properly demands widespread thought and consideration.

Extravagance, waste, and corruption, in both high and low places, resulted two years ago in the establishment of an investigating Commission whose duty it was to study conditions and present a remedy to the Legislature of 1910. This commission has done excellent work along the lines laid down for it by the Legislature, resulting in a proposed new charter, containing many provisions that promise for substantial improvement in the government of the chief city of the Commonwealth.

The demand for this investigation came from within the city itself, as it ought to have come. The investigation has been carried out by men who are born and bred Bostonians. They have given to the work long and faithful service, and they have shown themselves to be competent to deal with the problem. We cannot believe that these are the only men, however, in the city of Boston who are capable of discussing or passing upon the right form of government for that city. We cannot believe that all the men who are thus equipped belong to the "Committee of 100," or belong to the hundred and one reform organizations throughout the city. We would rather believe that the rank and file of the citizenship of Boston averages up to the standard maintained throughout the Commonwealth, and that the great majority of the citizens of that city may be trusted to consider the government that the city needs.

The Legislature has evidently not taken this view of the problem. It has gone about the task of framing a charter for the city of Boston and so far as one branch is concerned has finished that task, with the idea apparently in mind that it was working for a people unfit to work out their own salvation. We believe that the call for a definite and clean cut referendum was an honest and proper demand to be made. To arrange the scheme of referendum so that it will be impossible for a man to divide his wishes on such important questions as a system of nomination and the length of a Mayor's term, is a juggling with the very principles of referendum, that savors of either trickery or deliberate deceit.

There is altogether too much evidence that Charter revision in the city of Boston is being promoted so far as the Legislature is concerned, in the interests of the dominant party. We do not believe that the dominant party needs this kind of bolstering or that it will profit by it. It does not need it in the city of Boston because such bolstering cannot amount to enough to ever make Boston a Republican city. Moreover there is no call to make Boston a partisan city in the interests of any particular political creed. That isn't what the people who are interested in good government desire to see for either the largest city in the Commonwealth or the smallest town. The time has gone by when the administration of municipal affairs can be wisely made to serve the promotion of a political machine, and those men who have sought these things through the frame-up as it now exists in the shape of a new charter for the city of Boston will not be obliged to wait long before they see the failure of their carefully laid plan.

There is a suggestion that there is still a possibility of change in this bill before it finally becomes law. We do not believe there is the least possibility of such a change. The man in the saddle, who is directing and controlling the legislation on Beacon Hill this winter knows what he wants and is in the habit of insisting that he shall have his wishes complied with, with little reference to the desires of anybody else. Occasionally there are men who are big enough to ride "rough-shod" for their own advantage to the destruction of everything that stands in their path. But this is for only a brief period; some men are big; the great mass of men is always ultimately bigger.

The men who are pushing through this proposition have reason to be very much elated over the complete mastery they have shown over the members of the Legislature. Loud and long opposition had been expressed to many of the charter features by a score of Republicans, but when their opposition and individuality could count for something, they have been only silent witnesses to the domination of the master. If the Democrats are clever they will have little difficulty in finding issues this fall for both state and city elections.

We believe the Boston Charter bill, in its invasion of the right of a community to rule itself, in its usurpation of the functions properly belonging to the great mass of people by a few appointed officials, in its preaching of the doctrine that a community of people cannot be trusted, in its transparent illustration of the efforts of a political party to serve its own selfish ends, in these features, if in no others, we believe the Boston Charter proposition is loaded.

A Compliment to the Librarian

At the request of several who heard Mr. Jenkins' tribute to Miss Brown in his welcoming address to the visiting librarians last week, we are publishing the following:

Ladies and Gentlemen, Representatives of the Public Libraries of the Old Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

It gives me great pleasure to extend to you a cordial welcome to our fine old Town incorporated 263 years ago today, which stands with the foremost in education and all that pertains to the uplift of the people. Like Mt. Zion, beautiful for situation. Today the public library ranks next to the public school, free to rich and poor alike. The libraries are the educators of thousands of those who have been deprived, by no fault of their own, of early school privileges and who now eagerly seek the reading and reference rooms for their walk in life. Books are selected with great care for all ages, equally helpful to teacher and pupil. The value of a library depends very much upon the Librarian in keeping before the public eye books pertaining to the history of state and nation, to the famous men and women of literature, science and art, to travel and to nature as it appears from season to season. Such a librarian we have at our Memorial Hall Library. In closing, I wish your sojourn here to be a happy and profitable one. Andover has much to offer of interest and her lath-strings are all out to you and plenty of guides to show you about, and again I extend to you a most hearty welcome.

Obituary

ADELE STUART HUTCHINSON

After many months of severe suffering from an incurable disease, Dr. Adele S. Hutchinson passed away at her home on Whittier street, Friday, May 21. Born in Andover, where her childhood was spent, she was educated in the public schools and at Abbot Academy. After graduating from the Boston University Medical School, she went to Minneapolis, where for twenty-eight years she practiced medicine, attaining to great success in her chosen profession. Owing to increasing ill health, she returned to Andover in August, 1906, where she remained until her death.

Her many friends in town will be interested to read the following from the Minneapolis Evening Tribune: "Dr. Hutchinson was one of the best known homeopathic physicians in Minneapolis. She graduated from the Boston University school of Medicine in 1878 and until two years ago she practiced her profession in this city. She occupied a prominent position in the profession, being eminently fitted for such a field of labor by reason of a broad education, a specially cultured intellect and a naturally adaptability to her chosen work."

She was a member of the American institute of homeopathy of this state and local organizations. She served for many years on the staff of the City hospital, and during that time gave to the nurses a course of lectures said to have been the most valuable ever given in that institution. She also served for six years as member of the state examining board, and it is acknowledged that her influence on the board and its work resulted in much good in many ways.

She was for years president of the Medical Woman's club. Owing to her ill health the club met at her home and found her not only the wise leader and counsellor but the genial, brilliant hostess. While her medical knowledge and experience was invaluable to the club members, her happy faculty of entertaining with witty story, historical lectures and reminiscences, was the source of much enjoyment.

Funeral services were held at her late home on Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. F. R. Shipman. Mrs. Frederick G. Moore rendered two selections. Interment was in the South cemetery.

EDWARD BUTTERWORTH

Edward Butterworth of North Andover died at his home in that town last Saturday. He was 71 years of age. Since last Christmas he has been ailing but was able to be about until about a week before his death.

Mr. Butterworth was well known in this town where he was for many years supervisor of music in the public schools, a position he held in North Andover for 28 years. The deceased was born in Rochdale, England, in 1847. He learned the machinist's trade but left this work to follow his natural musical bent. Besides his school work, Mr. Butterworth taught singing classes, and directed the music in the Trinitarian Congregational church for many years. He was the only musical supervisor North Andover has had.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. John L. Keedy. In respect to the memory of the deceased, all the North Andover schools closed Tuesday afternoon and the school flags were at half mast. The large company of mourners included many of his former pupils in Andover.

Cricket

A good place for the citizens of Andover to spend Decoration Day, after the exercises peculiar to the morning hours are over, will be the Andover cricket grounds, where a two inning game is to be played between the West Indian Athletics and the home eleven. The Athletic eleven is composed of natives of the West Indies, where cricket is extensively practiced, and where there are many expert exponents of the game. This team represents the West Indian Athletic Association of Boston, and there are several crack players among them.

The Andover eleven will be chosen from the following list: W. Black, J. Gordon, W. Gordon, J. Haddon, W. Rhodes, W. Matthews, W. Haddon, Jr., W. D. Valentine, D. Croall, J. Fettes, W. McDermitt, J. Porter, A. Anderson, G. Petrie.

Play begins at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

William Haddon, William Black, and Charles Fettes will represent the Andover C. C. in the M. V. C. League exhibition game in Lowell, Decoration Day.

Although the Andover C. C. had two games scheduled for last Saturday, the first eleven at Lowell and the second eleven at home, owing to unfavorable weather both games had to be postponed.

The Andovers meet the Moore Spinning team of Lowell, on the home ground, in a M. V. C. league fixture, tomorrow afternoon, play to begin at 3 o'clock. Following is the Andover team: W. Haddon, captain; W. Black, D. Bruce, J. Gordon, T. Lamond, J. Haddon, C. Fettes, W. Rhodes, W. Haddon, Jr., W. Matthews, W. Gordon, Umpire, D. Croall; reserves, G. Petrie, A. Anderson; scorer, A. Valentine.

Deaths

In Brooklyn, New York, May 24, from apoplectic stroke, Elizabeth Carpenter Ludlow, wife of John G. Johnson, M.D.

Died in Winchester, May 23, Mrs. Cara H., widow of the late Dea. L. K. Bowers. Interment in Spring Grove Cemetery.

A Pleasing Appointment

An appointment of much interest is that of Miss Bertha M. Terrill to the chair of Home Economics, Univ. Vermont, a department of university work in which the alumnae have been deeply interested for several years and for the establishment of which they have worked with great earnestness and contributed very generously. The new professor is a thorough Vermonter, being a native of Morrisville and a former student at the Peoples' Academy and St. Johnsbury Academy. In addition to proficiency in her own specialty she is a lady of fine general culture, being a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, class of 1896, and taught Greek for four years in Abbot Academy, Andover, Mass. In the line of her specialty she studied chemistry at the Harvard summer school, and held a fellowship in the School of Housekeeping, Boston. For the past eight years she has held her present position of professor of Home Economics in the Hartford (Connecticut) School of Pedagogy, with the exception of a year spent in the University of Chicago, where she held a fellowship and from which she received the degree of M. A. She has carried on original investigations which have been published in the bulletins of the United States government. She is the author of a volume in the "Library of Home Economics," to which some of the leading authorities on this subject in this country have contributed. Professor Terrill comes very highly recommended by such well known educators as Prof. Ellen H. Richards of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Professor Kinne of Columbia University, Prof. Anna P. Norton of the University of Chicago, Miss Sarah Louise Arnold of Simmons College, Boston, and others.

Birth

In New York City, May 25, twin sons to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter.

The Kaffeeklatsch.

The difference between a 5 o'clock tea and a German Kaffeeklatsch is enormous. The tea is a pleasant go-as-you-please meeting, where we balance our toupacs in hand perilously handicapped by our multitudinous possessions, augmented by the frail saucer on which a top heavy piece of cake finds an insecure resting place. We may enjoy a variety of creature comforts augmented by ices and cups on festive occasions.

Not so the German Kaffeeklatsch. That is a ponderous affair which you take sitting at tables. Coffee and savories mark the beginning of the meal, followed by numerous cakes which the Germans know so well how to make. This is followed by some creamy preparation or a beautiful device made in ice. This again is succeeded by the choicest fruits.

The Kaffeeklatsch is meanwhile still busily plying its trade. There is a well known German song which ends with the refrain, freely translated "Thank you, thank you, hostess mine I never drink more cups than nine."—London Queen.

The Fairy Hounds.

In some years stoats appear to be more numerous than in others, and they are seen not in ones and twos, but in dozens, hunting together in small packs. The late R. T. Booth of Brighton, when shooting in East Lothian one autumn, met a pack of stoats which attacked a terrier he had with him and would not be driven off until he and the dog between them had killed more than a dozen. Stoats will hunt together from scent and in full cry like a pack of hounds, one always keeping the line and followed closely by the others. This sight has been recorded by different observers, who have also seen weasels hunting in the same way. There is a popular notion in the west of England that hares are hunted at night by packs of little fairy hounds, locally called "dandy dogs," and these are said to be weasels, which the west country folks call "fairies," pronouncing the word "valry" and "valr." Some of them declare that they have seen and watched the chase with awe.—London Graphic.

Poetic Justice.

A man whose soul had been tortured frequently by the remarks of his wife, who takes a diabolical delight in setting a price on the handsome clothes worn by other women, one day found sweet comfort in the incautious comment of a woman in a crowded car.

"Oh, yes," said that observing other woman, "the hat looks well enough, but it is cheap. It couldn't have cost a cent more than 3d."

Thereupon said the man to his wife: "Why do you always pick out the most expensive clothes for special notice? Why don't you look at something cheap once in a while? There are cheap things worn. There is a hat in this very car that cost only 3d. The woman just behind us pointed it out a minute ago."

"Well," said his wife, "you are the last person on earth who ought to feel proud of it. It was she who was talking about it."—New York Times.

Old English Flint Glass.

Large quantities of lead and potash were introduced into the constituents of the glass which in 1673 is described as being clear, heavy and thick as crystal.

A great impetus was given to the manufacture when the edict of Nantes in 1685 drove the skilled artisans from France. Many of them came to England, and the fame of British glass grew until it was considered superior to that of Bohemia.

From 1736 to about 1761 we have but few particulars. Then Michael Edkins, formerly a potter, became prominent as a maker of the highest class of enameled glass, which has become very scarce. It has an opaque white body, beautifully painted in enamel colors with figures, flowers, etc. In fact, it much resembles a glossy porcelain. It is getting scarce, too, and fine pieces are increasing in value.—London Opinion.

Porcine Geometry.

Seven-year-old William had become the proud owner of a pet pig and insisted upon having all the care of it himself. After a few weeks, as the pig did not seem to thrive, his father said to him:

"William, I'm afraid you are not feeding your pig enough. It does not seem to be fattening at all."

"I don't want him to fatten any yet," William replied knowingly. "I'm waiting until he gets to be as long as I want him, then I'll begin to widen him out."

After the Honeymoon.

He (at a picture gallery)—I wonder what that painting represents? The youth and the maiden are in a tender attitude. She—Oh, don't you see? He has just asked her to marry him, and she is accepting him. He—Ah, how appropriate the title! She—I don't see it. He—Why, that card at the bottom says "Sold."

Her Reason.

He—Do you know any good reason why women should vote? She—Yes, I do. "What is it?" "Well, because,"—Yonkers Statesman.

In Spite of It.

Mother—And when he proposed did you tell him to see me? Daughter—Yes, mamma, and he said he'd seen you several times, but he wanted to marry me just the same.—Sphinx.

Whoever bath nobly yielded to necessity I hold him wise, and he knoweth the things of God.—Euripides.

FROM AN ANDOVER WINDOW

JOHN UNDERWOOD

Hats Off!

Hats off for the Grand Army! Memorial Day will soon be here,—that eloquent day of the shrunken columns. Hats off to the little company of those who fought in the great war!

If ever I wish for pleasant weather, it is on Memorial Day and on the Sunday that comes before. I would not lose one item in the simple and reverent observances of the time. It is good to go into the church. The silken flag makes an unwonted brilliant splash of color in the midst of the sober place. The eye is drawn to those stars and stripes which formed such a precious symbol of our nation forty and eight years ago, and out of loosened hearts prayers and praise go, up to God for the nation which, under God, still lives.

On Monday we shall bend our steps towards the town hall. The touching moments in Memorial Hall will be over. The elderly men will come trooping down the stairs, and a few moments later they will enter the town house between the saluting lines of their escort. As the years go by, I notice no diminution of the audience. I am glad of it. I dare say that in the great cities they have more elaborate exercises than ours, but I like ours. I like to listen to the blare of the band from its familiar corner, like to listen to the little clash of swords as the veterans take their seats, the welcome, the prayer, the Gettysburg Address, the oration of the day, and "America." Then we pour out again into the sunshine. You may be sure I am at the South Church to see the little procession come down leafy School street, and to hear the Dead March from Saul, and to watch the quiet movements among the graves where each sleeping soldier must have his flag and his flowers. The children run about and laugh and eat their pieces of cocoanut. I too laugh with my neighbors, and notice the children, and wonder how Johnny and Sallie have grown. But I have seen some sights which these children and many of their parents have never seen; and so—as the barges roll on towards Ballardvale—I take off my hat again to the living veterans and to the dead boys whom I knew nigh fifty years ago.

This week, thirty-eight years ago, people were speaking to one another of the death of Ellsworth. Death—the war—was not yet common. Men did not dream how common it was to become.

The authorities in Washington had reached out a cautious hand to occupy Alexandria. Capt. Elmer Ellsworth and his Chicago Zouaves had been sent there from the Washington Navy-yard. Young Ellsworth—he was only 24—had formed his own company just after the Crimean War. He had visited France and studied the Zouave drill there. Every one of his soldiers was pledged not to drink, smoke, gamble.

In the gray dawn of the 24th their steamboat reached Alexandria. On the full run the Zouaves started for the telegraph office to take possession. On the way they came to a hotel, over the roof of which a rebel flag was flaunted. "We must have that flag," exclaimed Ellsworth. Rushing in, he found a man in the office, and asked, "Who raised that flag?" "I don't know," was the reply, "I'm a boarder here." Followed by two or three, the young captain sprang up the stairs, reached the roof, seized the rebel banner, and was descending with it in his hand, when the same man, who had said he was a boarder but was in fact the proprietor himself, jumped from a dark passage and shot him through the heart.

The night before this, Ellsworth had written a farewell letter to his parents. In it he had said, "I am perfectly content to accept whatever my fortune may be; confident that He who noeth even the fall of a sparrow, will have some purpose even in the fate of one like me."

No doubt God did; and not in his fate only. And on Monday we shall remember reverently all those who gave the last full measure of devotion that this nation might live.

Punchard 5, Pinkerton 3

Punchard High defeated Pinkerton Academy on the Playstead Saturday afternoon 5 to 3. The weather conditions were most disagreeable and the game was well played under the circumstances.

Punchard won through timely hitting and good base running. The score:

The choir of the New Church of Newtonville and Christ Church, Andover, gave the fifth annual festival in Christ Church last Friday to an audience which as usual completely filled the auditorium.

Conductor John Bacheider presented a very pleasing program of high class music and the performance taken as a whole was very creditable both to conductor and singers. The boys were very enthusiastic in the work, the ensemble singing of the sopranos being especially good. This was particularly noticeable in "I heard a Great Voice," by Cobb, which was splendidly rendered. The tone quality was good throughout and the finale, "Hosanna in the Highest," produced a most pleasing combination of purity of tone and power.

H. H. Noyes rendered the bass solos of this anthem in his usual pleasing manner.

Pointer's "Te Deum" taxed the choir to their utmost and was a very pretentious composition, full of fireworks and effective changes. It was of the elaborate festival style.

A welcome number on the program was the chorus "He Watched over Israel" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." The fugue passages were well taken and sustained throughout, although at times there was a weakness in the bass section. The choir has rendered this chorus with better effect in previous festivals.

The second part consisted of Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer." This is a very beautiful composition with soprano solos of rare beauty. Master Wilson Knipe was soloist and he rendered the difficult music in a finished manner. It was a very creditable performance for so young a singer. The obligato, "Oh for the wings of a dove," was finely sung.

The instrumental numbers, which included a piano and organ duet by Mrs. Carter of Newtonville, and Mr. Wilkinson, organist of Christ church, added to the evening's enjoyment.

The public of Andover are greatly indebted to Mr. Bacheider not only for these excellent festivals but also for the splendid training which the boys are getting in the music of the highest type.

The program was as follows:

Organ Prelude, "Toccata in G" Dubois
Processional Hymn, "Ten thousand times ten thousand" J. B. Dykes
Te Deum in B-flat John Pointer
Terzetto and Chorus Mendelssohn
(From Oratorio of "Elijah")
Anthem, "I heard a Great Voice" Gerard Cobb

Bass Solos by H. H. Noyes
Piano and Organ Duett, "Largo," Op. 1, No. 2 Beethoven-Waage

Soprano Solos and Chorus
Solos by Master Wilson Knipe
Recessional Hymn, "Light's Abode, Celestial Salem"

AMONG THE CHURCHES, CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

Notes from the Baptist Church

On the evening of May 20th, a pleasant Experience Social was held in the vestry. The first part of the entertainment consisted of graphophone selections, flute and fife solos, by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Stevens, a song by Mrs. Jackson, and readings by Mr. Gilbert, all well rendered and applauded heartily. Then came the part for which the social was named. The Endeavorers and others have been earning money for a portable organ, to be used at the cottage prayer meetings, held frequently on Sunday afternoons. This organ was viewed with pride on Thursday night, more especially as its cost was all pledged or paid at that time. Several of the young people told how they had earned their dollars, the experiences causing much merriment. Refreshments were served, the new organ was tried, and, at the close of a happy evening, the people dispersed. Last Sunday afternoon, a praise service was held at the home of Mrs. Catherine Leitch, on No. Main street. It was well attended, and the hour, filled with song and prayer and testimony, passed pleasantly for all, bringing blessing to those who cannot attend the church services, and to others as well.

Monday evening, the Christian Endeavorers met for the semi-annual election of officers. The business was soon over, the following being those chosen for the coming term: President, Miss Margaret Waites; vice-president, Charles A. Stone; secretary, Miss Pauline Benoit; treasurer, Miss Edith Johnson; corresponding secretary, P. F. Gilbert. After the business, there was a social hour, and perhaps those who stayed at home will wish they had attended. Ice cream and cake were served, and all hugely enjoyed the evening. The Alexander hymn books were brought out, and there was a pleasant rivalry to see if the heavier voices could drown those of the young ladies. So the time passed swiftly and pleasantly.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

May 7, A. D. 1909.

Frances S. Clarke, Executrix of the will of Amasa Clarke, late of Brookline in the County of Norfolk, deceased, plaintiff, against The Inhabitants of the Town of Andover in the County of Essex; Harry M. Eames of said Andover, as he is Trustee under the will of Benjamin H. Puncard, late of said Andover, deceased; the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, the American Bible Society and the Seamen's Friend Society, all corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York and having their usual place of business in the City, County and State of New York; the American Sunday School Union, a corporation duly established by law and having its usual place of business in Boston in the County of Suffolk; and Anson Baldwin and Martha P. Baldwin, both of Yonkers in the State of New York, defendants, in a bill of complaint in equity.

The plaintiff says that Benjamin H. Puncard of said Andover died in the year 1850, leaving a will, duly proved and allowed by the probate court for the County of Essex May 7, 1850, in the second paragraph of which, among other gifts, he gives "to Ellen, . . . , seven thousand dollars, the income of which if not needed for their support, and schooling, to be added to the principal during their minority; and at the age of twenty-one they to receive the income of the several amounts devised by them during the remainder of their lives; and sooner, if married before the age of twenty-one, at the time of said marriage; in case of the death of either of them before they come of age or are married, the said sum or sums to be appropriated for the establishment of an asylum in Andover for the benefit of orphans and indigent children under the direction of my trustees or executor; and in case of their death or the death of either of them, leaving children, the said amount to go to the said children." That during the lifetime of said Ellen the income was duly paid to her guardian, (she being an insane person), her death occurring February 18, 1893, she never having married and being more than twenty-one years of age. The Town of Andover being unwilling to accept the fund for the purpose named in the will at the time of the death of said Ellen the same has been held by the trustee of said estate, Amasa Clarke, until his death, October 26, 1907, and the plaintiff, duly appointed executrix of his estate, has in her hands and possession the principal and accumulations of said trust estate, which is claimed by the defendant Eames, appointed trustee under the will on behalf of the town of Andover, said Town desiring to use the same for charities of said Town. Said fund is also claimed by the defendants Missionary Society, Bible Society, Seamen's Friend Society, and the Sunday School Union, on the ground that the trust terminated on the death of said Ellen, and that they are entitled to the same as residuary legatees under the will. The plaintiff is also informed and advised that the same may be claimed by the defendants Baldwin, children of Sarah Elizabeth Puncard, also referred to in the said second paragraph of the will, she having been married and being still living; and is also advised that said fund may be claimed by the heirs-at-law of said Ellen on the ground that it is an absolute gift, but that no administration has been taken out on her estate. She prays for instructions as to which of said several claimants is entitled to the fund in her hands.

And now it appearing that said defendants Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, American Bible Society, Seamen's Friend Society, Anson Baldwin and Martha P. Baldwin reside out of this Commonwealth, and in a part of the United States east of the Mississippi River, it is ORDERED: That notice be given to said respondents to appear and answer the plaintiff's bill within one month from the first Monday of July next, by causing them to be served with an attested copy of this order as soon as may be, or by publishing such copy in the Andover Townsman, a newspaper printed in Andover in said county, three times in different weeks, within thirty days from the date hereof, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the time of appearance.

Attest:—
E. B. GEORGE, Clerk.
The foregoing is a true copy of order.

Bowling

The Majestic alleys, Lawrence, were the scene of a rather one-sided game of Duck Pins, between the team representing the Flax department and a team picked from the Repairs department of the Smith & Dove mills, last Friday evening, when the picked team won two strings and the pin fall, by 1225 to 1173. Kydd did the heavy rolling for the picked team, having a single string of 106, and a total of 271. Haddon's total of 250 was the best for his side. This is the second game in the series between these teams, and each having won one, the rubber will be played on the same alleys in the near future.

METHUEN

Miss Florence S. Smith of Lowell street has returned home from California where she has been teaching private school.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church was entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Stanley.

The work of grading the Bicknell property at the junction of Broadway and Brown street has been commenced. The tract of land, which is quite extensive, will be opened shortly for building purposes.

A reception was tendered to Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Kershaw on Wednesday evening. The occasion was the acknowledgment by the parishioners of Mr. Kershaw's acceptance of the pastorate for another year.

A news item from Windham, N. H., reads: "The memorial tablet to mark the birthplace in 1766 of Governor Samuel Dinsmoor at Jenny's hill, the highest elevation in town, will soon be set in place by the present owner of the farm, Edward F. Seales, who has recently transferred his legal residence from Methuen to Windham. Ex-County Commissioner William D. Cochran is chairman of the committee appointed by the town to arrange for the unveiling July 1. His grandfather, Robert Dinsmoor, was a brother of the governor, who served in 1831-4. His son and namesake served in 1849-52. Jarvis Dinsmoor of Sterling, Ill., will deliver the principal address at the unveiling and Gov. Henry B. Quincy will be present."

The graduation parts of the class of 1909, Methuen High school, have been awarded as follows: Valedictorian, Miss Ruth S. Rafferty; salutatorian, Miss Maude Firth, Selina Cunliffe, Bertha G. Kelly, Margaret E. McNamara, Ruth Kelly and Grace Thompson. The honor list is as follows: Ruth S. Rafferty, Maude Firth, Selina Cunliffe, Bertha G. Kelly, Margaret E. McNamara. The others who will graduate are: Daniel S. Bailey, Joseph H. Bodwell, Edward M. Bridge, Bertha M. Douglas, Lillian L. Dunbar, Albert D. Gilbert, Clarence P. Houston, Chester A. Hutchins, Forrest F. Hyde, Lester W. Hyde, Philip W. Johnson, Ruth Reilly, Gertrude M. Mahoney, Maurice Mahoney, George W. Needham, Frank Porter, Ralph C. Rutter, Blanche Taylor, Helena A. Slader, Grace H. Thompson.

The annual reception of the Junior class of the Methuen High school to the seniors, took place in Nevins Memorial hall Friday evening, the affair proving one of the most successful in the annals of the school. The Juniors certainly proved themselves excellent entertainers and the play, "What's Next?" as presented by several of the class was, without exception, the finest ever staged in Methuen. The parts were all finely rendered and the entire play was presented with that ease and grace that characterizes professional acting. Miss Lucia Riley in the leading role of Polly Pook, a conundrum; and Mary Ann Fogarty, from the Emerald Isle, played a difficult part in a finished manner. Her impersonations of the two different characters being nothing short of perfect. The play was staged under the direction of Sub-Master Edgar Gilbert and to him much credit is due for the success of the affair. At the conclusion of the play dancing was enjoyed until 1 o'clock, the Bay State orchestra furnishing music.

The Misdirected Letter.

By TIMOTHY C. PICK.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Abner Simmons entered his bachelor apartment after returning from business, sighed, sat down in an easy chair and felt very lonely. Presently he looked up at the mantel, and there stood a letter. It was addressed to a woman's hand to Mrs. Abner Simmons. To Mr. Simmons this address was a mockery. It suggested a home, a pleasant looking woman tripping downstairs at hearing her husband's latch-key in the door, followed by a troop of girls and boys; a connubial kiss and several pairs of little arms around papa's neck.

All this Mr. Simmons saw in the oblong letter addressed to her who was not. Of course there was a Mrs. Simmons for some man of the same name as himself; but, alas, there was no such person for him! What should he do with it? He took it down from the mantel and examined it closely. A hand was stamped on it with its forefinger pointing to "Try this" and "Try that." There were so many of these suggestions "to try" that Mr. Simmons believed the letter had been the rounds and no Mrs. Simmons found. How could she be found since she did not exist? He determined to make a dead letter office of himself, open it and return it to the writer.

Mr. Simmons took out a letter and a card photograph. The photograph was that of a woman from thirty to thirty-five years old, and as he looked it seemed to be the face of her whose reception of him had filled his fancy. The letter was signed, "Your loving sister." The address was given, and Mr. Simmons put it in another envelope, with a brief note stating his motives in opening it and asking for information of Mrs. Abner Simmons and how she happened to exist without his being any better for her existence. He wished to keep the photograph, but did not feel authorized to do so. He addressed it to the street and number given in the letter.

In about a week a reply came. The writer said the name on the letter was not Simmons, but Timmons. (After all, there was no Mrs. Simmons.) The photograph was a likeness of Miss Margaret Butterworth. The writer, Miss Cornelia Boyd, was transmitting it to Mrs. Timmons. The letter concluded with thanks for the favor Mr. Simmons had done the writer.

Just what Mr. Simmons had said in his note about the photograph does not appear, but Miss Boyd must have noticed something of admiration and been ready, as most women are, to help out a romance, for she was not called upon to mention the picture, as she did. Mr. Simmons wrote again, asking if Miss Butterworth were related to James Butterworth, an eminent divine and an uncle of the writer. A reply came that Miss Boyd could not answer the question and gave Miss Butterworth's address.

Mr. Simmons cooked up quite an ingenious letter to Miss Butterworth. After mentioning that he had seen her picture and how he came to see it he said that the features were remarkably like those of the Rev. James Butterworth, his esteemed uncle, and he was sure that he (Simmons) could claim her for a relative, probably a first cousin. He received a polite reply that the lady had no such relative and had never heard of any such person. This was not surprising to Mr. Simmons, whose knowledge of the reverend gentleman was precisely that of Miss Butterworth. The clergyman was an invention.

The genealogical plan having failed, Mr. Simmons wrote again to Miss Boyd, frankly stating that he would be interested to meet the original of the photograph and asking if in the kindness of her heart she would suggest a method for the purpose. All the world loves a lover, and Miss Boyd gave him a list of half a dozen friends of Miss Butterworth, any of whom might introduce him provided they knew him to be a gentleman.

Meanwhile Miss Boyd had put her friend on to the fact that she had an unknown admirer, and it was Miss Butterworth who suggested the names of the possible introducers. One, and only one, of the names was known to Mr. Simmons, and he was a member of Simmons' club. The attentions Mr. Simmons suddenly began to shower upon this man were only understood when a request came for the introduction.

It was an advantage to Mr. Simmons' cause that for several months Miss Butterworth was cognizant of the fact that she had an unknown admirer. Her fancy during this time was feeding on Mr. Simmons' person. Miss Boyd, whose misdirected letter had led to this possible romance, made inquiries about Mr. Simmons, found friends who knew him and pronounced him a good man. This Miss Boyd exaggerated into "a noble, good man." Miss Butterworth, too, was on the shady side of thirty and not unwilling to meet her fate. Before the introduction she had been given Mr. Simmons' antecedents, his business and social standing by her friend, who asked permission to do the introducing. All that remained was to see Mr. Simmons.

When she did see him the impression was so favorable that the way from this point was made easy for him. He proposed to her the evening he met her, she gave an answer tantamount to an acceptance, and they were married in due time.

And now the fancy excited by the supposed name of Mrs. Simmons (who, after all, has little or nothing to do with this story) is being rapidly fulfilled.

Large Users and Small Users

A WELL DEVELOPED telephone system is the consensus of many desires, not the narrow reflection of the wishes of some individual or group of individuals.

In planning such a service it is necessary to have many different classes of rates, so that it may be placed within the means of everyone. Each subscriber to the service, be he large user or small user, adds strength and value to the whole.

To realize this interdependence—to emphasize the value of a service connecting all classes of users—and to offer its product—(telephone service) in lots suited to the needs of all classes—this has been the effort of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

That its forecast of possibilities has been verified, that its campaign of education has been effective, and that its distribution of classes of service to meet varied requirements has been approved, needs no argument other than the repetition of this conclusive fact—310,000 telephones connected to its system.

If you are not represented among the 310,000 telephones now connected with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's system, let us show you how a telephone would be helpful.

If you don't need one, your wife may. Count the steps it will save, the comfort it will bring, the emergency service it will render, and you will say a residence telephone at our rates is an economical investment.
